Who are we?

We are the first wind philharmonic in Poland! We've been connected by passion, professionalism, experience, and an irresistible need to break patterns under Mariusz Dziubek's baton. Our musicians have performed many times with traditional symphony orchestras. In the Polish National Wind Orchestra instruments have been given new roles and thanks to them we discover unknown worlds of musical adventures!

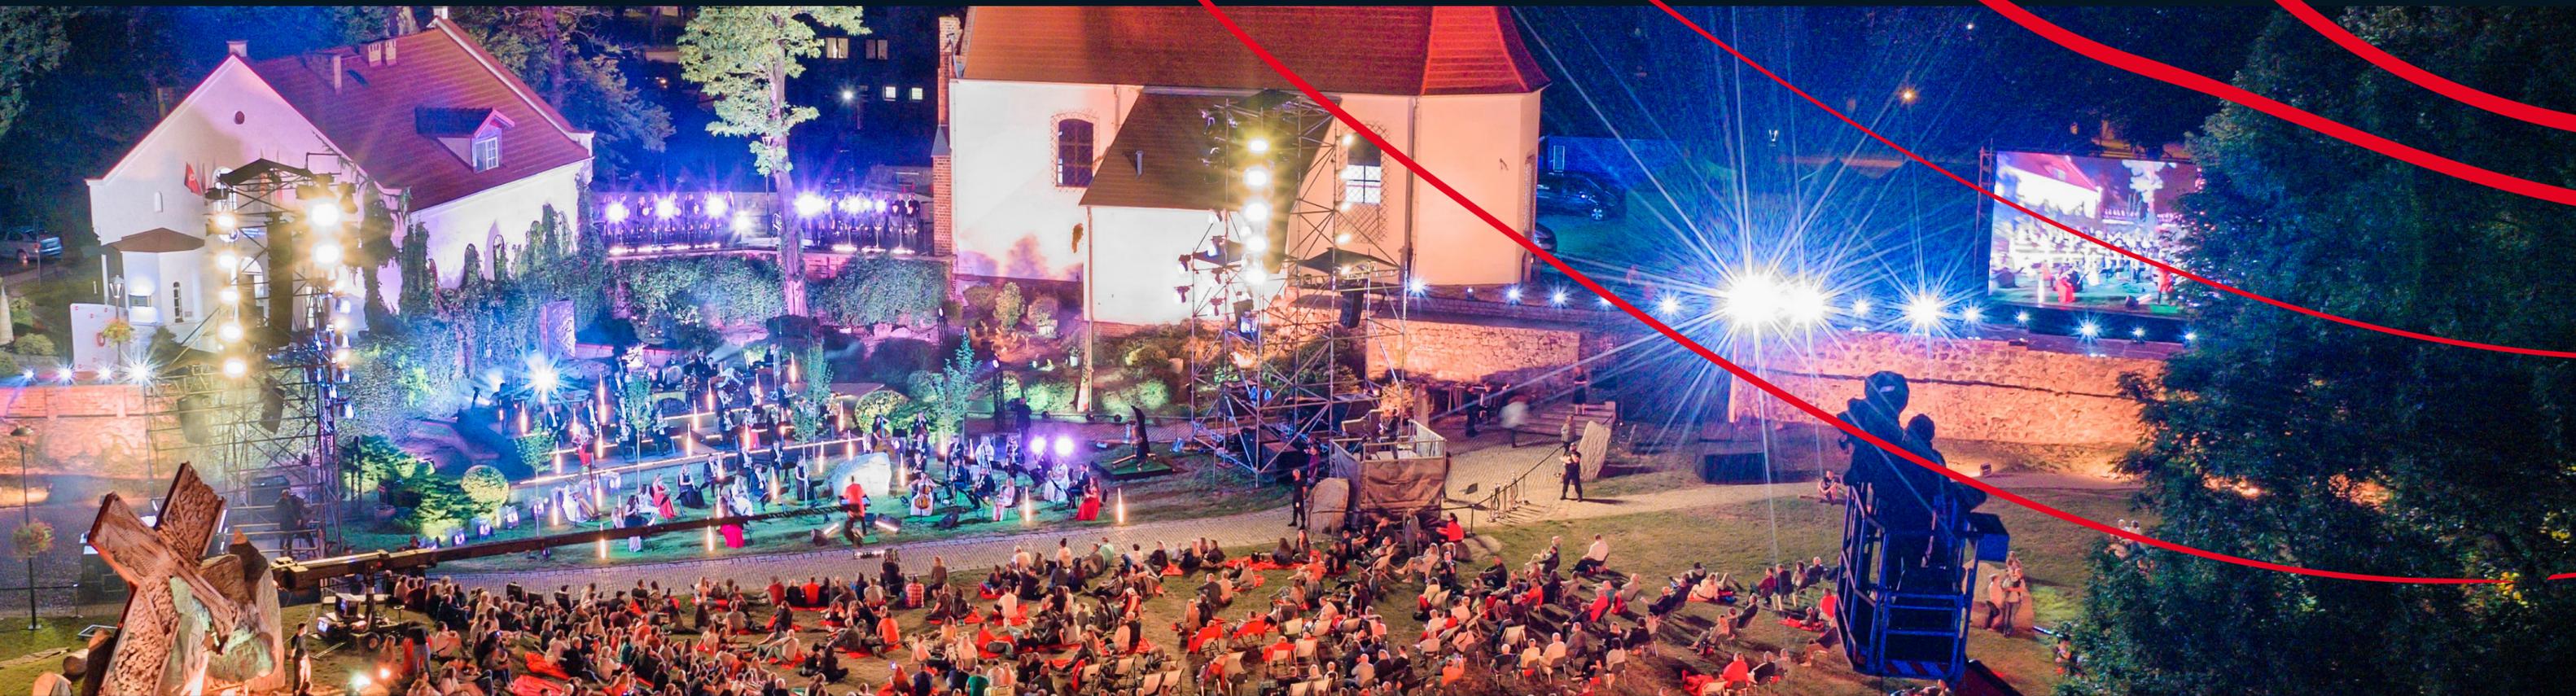

What we do?

We disseminate music by organising orchestral concerts, chamber concerts, festivals and music concerts.

Our tasks as a cultural institution also include providing musical setting for cultural and social events, conducting music education for children and youth, participating in phonographic, radio and television recordings. And most importantly, we break schemes!

Where we do it?

The Polish National Wind Orchestra headquarters is located in Lubin in Lower Silesia. However, in the era of widely available new technologies, we reach every corner of Poland!

Mariusz Dziubek

- a Man of Contrasts

Doctor of Musical Arts, arranger, composer, producer. A graduate of the University of Music in Warsaw, the Academy of Music in Gdańsk, Wrocław and Bydgoszcz. Lieutenant-colonel, reserve of the Polish Army. By music journalists called „a Flying Conductor”! From childhood, he has been fascinated by wind instruments, which, permeating the scores of his projects, make him a charismatic conductor. He has arranged over 150 pieces for big-band and wind orchestra in the genre of classic, jazz and pop music.

He likes playing with music and its genres, expressing emotions through it, sharing the joy and energy that playing gives him. From 2019, director of the first Polish National Wind Orchestra.

For whom?

We spread our passion for orchestral music to all generations: children, teenagers and adults! Our repertoire includes hits of classical, film, entertainment and pop music, performed in arrangements for wind instruments.

City of Lubin

The Polish National Wind Orchestra in Lubin was founded as an initiative of the mayor of the city, Robert Raczyński. PNWO was intended to add splendor to important events taking place in the city with its performances. The orchestra's activity surpassed the expectations of Lubin's hosts and became its showpiece. The musical events conducted by Mariusz Dziubek promote Lubin, its history and modern approach to art throughout Poland.
